Mankind needs a herald, like the heralds of old, to proclaim his claim so that all may know of the vital importance of health.

The average man of to-day thinks it beneath dignity to bother about his health until it is gone. Even then he only takes measures to restore it in an indifferent, contemptuous sort of way.

Men cannot learn too soon that health is the most important thing in life—in fact is life. Without it the most brilliant man will be a failure, and the most robust man will rapidly become a physical wreck. The man who neglects the little headaches, the loss of appetite and sleep, nervousness, hot flushes, cold chills, heavy head, lax muscles, and the multitude of bad feelings that are the heralds of approaching sickness and disease, must pay a tremendous penalty. For men who suffer in this way there is no medicine equal to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It sharpens the appetite, corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver, makes the assimilation of the food perfect, purifies the blood and enriches it with the life-giving elements that build new, healthy flesh. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption and is the best of all known remedies for nervous troubles. Thousands have told, over their own signatures, the stories of the wonders it has performed. Honest dealers will not urge a substitute for the sake of a little extra profit.

Thomas Fletcher, of Clifton Station, Fairfax Co., Va., writes: "I suffered terrible tortures for a week, with a severe pain in my stomach. I then took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which completely cured me."

When the bowels are regular the body will feel good and the mind will be active. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. All good dealers sell them and have nothing else "just as good."

Any Time You Want at the Pole. Those who are conversant with the use of globes know that all the meridians of longitude starting from the equator converge toward and meet at the pole. They know, too, that longitude signifies time, and that difference of longitude is difference in time. They know very well that when it is noon in London it is about 7 o'clock in the morning in Boston, and that when it is noon in San Francisco it is about a quarter past 3 in the afternoon in New York.

Now, as the meridian of London extends to the north pole, it necessarily insures that when it is noon in the English capital it must also be noon at the north pole. In a similar manner when it is noon at Boston, or in San Francisco, or at Peking, or any other place situated in the northern hemisphere, it follows that it must also be noon at the pole, because all the meridians of those places unite at the north pole. Therefore it is noon all day long at the pole.

Thus there is an entire absence of time at the pole. But it would be just as correct to say that it is a place where there is a preponderance of time, for it is practically any time of day during the whole 24 hours, or indeed through the year. In fact, a resident at the north pole could make it any time of day he might choose to select, with the consciousness that it would be the right time.—Youth's Companion.

A Woman's Whim. She was a woman who made a practice of being always amiable to the clerks in the shops, and there was one dry goods shop where she had traded for many years, and the clerks were like old friends. But there were some business changes, and a new firm made offers to the clerks who had been so long with the old firm that the woman had patronized, and they, almost to a man and woman, left. The lifelong patron of the shop was much incensed at this. It was not fair or right, she said, and in fact almost dishonorable.

One day when she made a first visit to the new shop one of the old clerks who knew her well stepped forward to speak to her after the old cordial fashion. But, no, this mild-mannered woman turned her head away with a cold stare and passed on without recognition. She could not be cordial to any one who had acted so dishonorably. No explanation is offered of why she herself was in the new shop. It may have been just out of curiosity. Of course one can shop where one pleases.—New York Times.

A Lucky Bit of Tim. Telling of a narrow escape from death which he had recently experienced, a railroad switchman said:

"I was leaning up against the end of that blue box car over there, thinking of what I was going to have for dinner, when I thought I saw a silver dollar lying in the street about ten feet away from me.

"I knew there was a shifter on the same track, but I thought it was down on the wharf at that time. I hadn't more than stepped away from the end of that car when the shifter bunted into it and drove it ahead about 20 feet. Say, suppose I hadn't seen that silver dollar and started for it. Where would I have been now? Yes, a man that is working around the cars has got to pay strict attention to business."

"Oh, I forgot to tell you that that silver dollar was only a round piece of tin, but it served its purpose just as well as the real thing could have done. I'm going to wear it on my watch chain for a charm. It ought to be better than a rabbit's foot."—Portland Express.

The Broker's Reply. A youthful looking broker went into a Broadway store the other day to buy a new hat, and laid his old one on the counter while waiting for the clerk to wait upon him. He happened to turn around as a Quaker came in in the garb unusual even in this cosmopolitan city, and smiled faintly at the odd sight. The Quaker took the broker for a salesman, and, taking off his broad hat, held it out to the young man, saying:

"Hast thou a hat like this, my friend?"

"No," replied the broker, "and if I had I would not wear it."

Then, noticing the look of surprise on the face of the grave old Quaker, he explained that he dealt in stocks, not in hats.—New York Tribune.

ORGANIZED LABOR.

At no time in the history of labor has it been in the advanced condition it is in at present. There is a growing popular feeling in its favor over the civilized world, and more particularly is the popular feeling in its favor advancing in the United States. The laboring man will in time become a prince in his relation to society.

The feeling that has followed labor in many parts of the earth is being largely removed. The feeling mentioned had its origin in times when the mass of mankind were held in vassalage in some form. It was the duty of the vassal to labor and in some form support his superior or lord. The condition of society was such in those times that the vassal who labored to support his lord was regarded as an inferior being in all respects to his superior, and labor, being associated with the inferior man, became to be viewed as degrading and unworthy of the attention of a person above its necessity.

The feeling that labor is degrading has continued in a more or less modified form. In former times education among the masses was limited to a few. In more modern times it has become general, and its general effect has been to elevate labor through organized effort to a plane where it more properly belongs. Education and the consequent intelligence in our time is having and will continue to have an influence that will tend to remove the feelings against labor that had its origin in less enlightened times.

The intelligence of labor in organized form continues to be more and more recognized by capital as a factor that must be taken into account in organized business, supported by organized capital; and those who have not given their attention to the great problem of labor because of their condition in life are, because of the prominence the question, through organized labor, is receiving, giving its relation to and influence upon capital, thought and investigation. The advanced condition of society in the better principles given to man for his higher government is tending largely in the advanced nations by its influence to secure labor a more liberal share of the profits that result from it.

The influences at work in behalf of labor are the stronger of all the influences that direct the course and destiny of the race, for which reason the rights of labor in the near future will be more fully recognized than they are now. Organized labor has been the chief lever by which the rights of labor have been given prominence, and it will continue to influence and direct attention and action in its favor by those who have the ability to aid it in its right to recognition by capital as the only factor that can advance its interests in the material affairs of men. The world's progress is dependent upon it and all else is dependent upon it to furnish the means of life, and the material force that will take the world to its final destiny. That which is chief in the motive power that moves a world cannot, in the light of intelligent action, remain in the background when its power is better understood, and in order that its force may become more speedily acknowledged, organized action is imperative.

It is settled at law that labor may rightfully strike, and the strike, when properly conducted, has been a means of organized labor to bring to its aid the better sentiment and judgment of the public, but when directed through a violation of law and the wilful destruction of property, it has had the opposite effect.

There is a means that has been used with the intention and for the purpose of aiding organized labor to acquire a favorable recognition of its rights against capital that has had a reverse influence upon it, and that is the boycott. Its use is against the law of God and man, and is therefore a means that has and will receive the disapproval of good people, whose efforts in the interest of labor are the most favorable to secure for it that high standard in the affairs of men that it should occupy. The boycott has been used to the detriment of labor, and more particularly organized labor, because organization gave effect to the boycott.

If organized labor would avoid all means of giving offense and abide strictly within the law and maintain good order, its march upward and forward would be more speedy, by securing more freely the aid of those who have become interested in securing to labor more of the profits that come from it. The boycott should not receive the support of any man upon moral principles, nor should it receive endorsement in any form by those who are identified with any labor organization.

CRITIC BEARD FROM ONCE MORE

The Gazette is in trouble again over another flop the JOURNAL has made on the Philippine difficulty. Never mind, Allen, the JOURNAL has not taken anything back in the matter of expansion. The Democratic party is quietly getting in line with the advanced views of the JOURNAL, and that's what's the matter.

It is the Democratic party that is flopping, Allen, and not the JOURNAL; and that's what's the matter.

Assembly Address.

The assembly address at the University yesterday was delivered by A. E. Cheaney. The Dreyfus case was the "International Episode" which constituted his theme. He stated that the legal procedure in this trial was according to French law.

In the absence of a knowledge of all the testimony, the news reader should not have his prejudices too strongly enlisted. The speaker thought that the severe strictures appearing in the English, German and American papers were unjust. Strong influences were at work for and against the prisoner. The friendship between the two republics should render our criticisms less harsh.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia, of Barcelona, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weeks nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head. On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest blood and nerve remedy, all pain soon left him. He says this grand medicine is what his country needs. ## Good Natured Satire.

To tell the plot of "A Milk White Flag" is to create laughter. Where even the plot is funny what must it be when all the incidents are elaborated and clothed with wit and humor by the master hand of Hoyt. It is a satire on the militia and a good natured one at that. The performance is interpersed with clever singing, dancing and mirthmaking from curtain to curtain.

ADDRESS BY DR. STUBBS AT MISSOULA

One of Best and Most Practical Talks Made in the Recent Irrigation Congress.

"CONSERVE THE WATERS

And the Arid Region Will Support a Great and Prosperous Population."

"WITHOUT doubt," began Dr. Stubbs, "the work of this congress is of national and state importance. As a representative of the commonwealth of Nevada I came to sit at the feet of the wise men of the west, who have followed the star of empire and have done so much to make the arid lands blossom."

Dr. Stubbs continued by saying that he also had the honor of representing the Association of Agricultural colleges in the United States, which organization, he said, intended to cooperate with the irrigation congress. There are represented in this association 53 agricultural colleges and 51 experiment stations, and it has been in existence 19 years. Not until this year, however, has the association ever met in the west. The members this year journeyed to the Pacific Coast and the trip was a great revelation to them. Their eyes were opened and then many of them realized for the first time the great results of irrigation. This year brought directly to the notice of members of eastern colleges the importance of irrigation and they will now give it much more attention than heretofore.

Dr. Stubbs then reviewed the splendid services rendered by the late Senator Morrill of Vermont in the establishing of the agricultural college system of this country. This liberal and practical educational system carried out by Senator Morrill is, however, as old as civilization. The training of youth on the banks of the Euphrates and the Tigris were of this type. This system foreshadowed the broadest of education and development in the youth of this land. This training in thrift and economy, personal and national, will make any country truly great. With this development going on, the time is not far distant when the States west of the Missouri will surpass a population as great as the Eastern States. Your association requires good engineers for the work of storing and conserving the waters of the west. Of even greater importance is the problem of properly applying the water thus stored. This is the work of the experiment stations.

As information is gathered and disseminated by agricultural colleges and experiment stations the work of the congress is made easier. The relation between the irrigation congress and the agricultural college and experiment station is close and inseparable, one supplements the other. Economy and the conservation of our resources are necessary. The work of education through these two organizations will not be hastily done, but is sound and it will eventually accomplish the purpose for which it was begun.

Dr. Stubbs continued with a series of illustrations that were apt and eloquent. His word painting was magnificent, and his remarks were received enthusiastically.

"The boys and girls of this country," said Dr. Stubbs, "are born to the richest heritage under the sun. This country (the arid belt) shall be redeemed, and these sage-covered plains and dusty foothills shall support a rich population and shall become the home of cultured people. This is the mission of the irrigation congress, and in this work the agricultural college and experiment station are with the congress."

A Capitalist From Michigan Talks of Alpine and Mono County Properties.

Dr. George L. Loope passed through Reno yesterday on his way from Alpine county, California, to his home in Michigan. Dr. Loope is a banker and physician of prominence in the medical and financial world.

He owns valuable mines 75 miles south of this city in Alpine county. The liveliest camp in that section bears his name.

Dr. Loope said to the JOURNAL reporter at the Riverside:

"The outlook for extensive mining operations in Alpine and Mono counties is very bright indeed. It is a section that has received little attention from prospectors in recent years, but is now coming to the front again.

"Next spring there will be a great deal of development work done. The Stella, Ellis, Lincoln and Bowers Hill mines will all be worked. At this region is tributary to Nevada your people should keep themselves posted on its mining development."

THE CLUB HOUSE IS

NOW ASSURED

Important Action Taken by the Wheelmen at a Meeting Last Evening.

The club house will be built. That much is settled. As to the ways and means, the dollar and cent problem, that remains simply in process of solution, but where there is a will there is a way, especially when a man like Francis G. Newlands stands back of a project of this sort.

A meeting of the wheelmen was held last night and it was so ordered that the club house be built. Thus far it was easy.

It will require $5,500 to see the project through. The estimated cost of the club house is $3,000. The track, grand stand and incidentals will take the rest.

Mr. Newlands is looking after some of these incidentals. He gave the club $100 to defray architects' expenses. He will also put up the grand stand and build the race track, and wait for his money if the boys are unable to raise the required sum.
